SECTION 1

THE BASICS

WHY DELEGATE?

Delegation is the process of transferring responsibility for performing tasks and accomplishing results from you to someone you trust. Here are some of the benefits of doing so.

- Projects you're responsible for involve too much for you to do alone.
- You can accomplish more
- You can concentrate your efforts on your most critical tasks and things you do best.
- It helps develop the capabilities of your staff.

WHAT KINDS OF TASKS CAN I DELEGATE?

There are many kinds of tasks that make excellent candidates to delegate. Here are some of the more common types:

- Routine and minor decisions
- Information Gathering
- Technical tasks
- Operating tasks
- Report generation
- Tasks you dislike doing that somebody else could do as well as you
- Tasks that can help your staff increase their capabilities and skills
- Other categories that you can think of

THE DELEGATION PROCESS

Successful delegation involves a 3 stage process—planning, making the delegation, and follow-up. Here are the critical ingredients in each phase.

- Phase 1: Planning
 - Focuses on 4 key questions:
 - ✓ What Tasks can I delegate?
 - ✓ What Level of Responsibility should I delegate?
 - ✓ Who can I delegate the task to?
 - ✓ What does the person need to accomplish the task?

- Phase 2: Making the Delegation
 - Describe what you want done
 - Communicate your expectations
 - Agree on a follow-up plan.

- Phase 3: Follow-up
 - Conduct needed status reviews so you know where things stand.
 - Determine and agree on corrective actions, if needed.

SECTION 2

DELEGATION PLANNING

DELEGATION PLANNING – STEP 1

The first step in delegating is to identify potential tasks to delegate. Here's an easy to use process. An example is shown on page 15.

- Look at how you are spending your time and identify your major tasks.
- Break each major task into its components.
- For each task component, ask:
 - Do I have to do it?
 - Even if I have to do it, can someone else help?
 - If someone can help, what part can they do?
 - Who would be a natural candidate to help with it?
